local actions for global impact

The Citizen Journalists Initiative is an activity within the project LADDER. It aims at creating a network of non-professional journalists who write about global issues from a local, national, European or global perspective, creating a platform for communication on Development Education and Awareness Raising (DEAR).

Are you interested?

- If you are a journalism lover and you practice it – or would be interested to practice - in a non professional way (maybe you write on a local paper, or you run a blog, or you are part of a university radio, or... you tell us!)
- If you are interested on global issues (including migration, human rights, development, poverty eradication, citizens' participation, youth engagement, solidarity, cohesion and mutual understanding, women's rights, multi-culturalism etc.) from a local/national/European/global perspective
- If you are tightly connected to the network of ALDA, being participant of one of our past projects

- If you are a citizen of any age (youngsters most welcome!) from the EU and its Neighbourhood

... then apply to this initiative!

LAST NEWS FROM LADDER NETWORK

National & Local Trainings on DEAR: LADDER consortium in action!

A large number of National and Local trainings already took place all around Europe, organised by the co-applicants of the project. In total, around one thousand participants attended and participated, increasing the network of DEAR actors across Europe

Regranting Scheme: grass root actions on development education

Calls for grass root actions of LADDER were launched last June. We now have results of activities that will be implemented in Spain, Estonia, Czech Republic, Netherlands, Romania and more to come!

New version of LADDER brochure available

Halfway to the completion of the project, the new brochure of the project LADDER is being issued! Check it out and discover LADDER project!

Athens Refugee Policy Lab

On 1-2 September, a seminar dedicated to the refugee flows took place in Athens, gathering multiple stakeholders to participate in a dialogue on refugee reception & integration policies in the EU.
